See 1971 Or. Laws, ch. 575, § 1. [8] I write separately because I am troubled by the majority's decision to add a new category? "serious offense [s]" to the list of crimes in which "circumstances of an especially heinous, cruel or depraved nature" may be a mitigating factor in determining whether to impose a sentence of death. Although I do not share the majority's view that the constitutional minimum of an Eighth Amendment analysis is a sentence of life without the possibility of parole, the United States Supreme Court does not require that a defendant "be spared the ultimate punishment of death." Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551, 563, 125 S.Ct. 1183, 161 L.Ed.2d 1 (2005) (emphasis added). Rather, the Court has concluded that "imposition of [the death] penalty on the least culpable defendant violates the Eighth Amendment." Id. at 569, 125 S.Ct. 1183. There is
