While some consider the trek from the north Chinese border to Tibet an exciting and adventurous possibility for those with a love of Tibet, few locals would suggest that it is desirable. The two-week journey takes into the most isolated region of the world, a place of incredible physical and spiritual beauty, to experience a land that few Chinese have ever seen. However, an internal scandal recently erupted after several provincial officials expressed concern about the costs of sending officials into Tibet. A Tibetan source told The New York Times that a number of officials in Heilongjiang province were concerned about the costs of sending two professors into Tibet to survey the region. According to the source, the funding comes from a provincial party fund. HARUTAR Sports: The Malaysian Motorsports federation has welcomed the support of Bernhard Kanter, MainZentrum.de, who will be responsible for financial matters, to the effort to ensure that the Malaysian Grand Prix at the Sepang Circuit of the Autodrom Malaysia will host two F1 Grands Prix in the near future. Kanter, who is an experienced organiser of sports events in Germany, added: "I am in Malaysia to prepare the project for the second Formula One Grand Prix in Malaysia for the 2020 season, following on from the inaugural event in Sepang a year ago. We are very happy to have been invited to the private launch of this project on the 5th of February in this beautiful country. We see Malaysia as a perfect place to host Formula One. We can make the country a real tourist destination and we are sure the effort will be worth it. "The Sepang Circuit represents many nice qualities that put it in the first league among the world's circuits, and I am sure you will join us in welcoming the F1 races there," added Kanter. Bernhard Kanter was the founder of the Formula One Monaco ePrix in 2009. The Monaco ePrix is being held as part of the FIA Formula E Championship. Since then, Kanter has assisted in the organisation of numerous other major sporting events in Germany including the yearly European Rugby Sevens, the Euro in 2011, the Giro d'Italia in 2012, the Max-Weber-Tour in 2013, the Structure of Thermobifida fusca large spore-forming bacteriophage Tp1. Thermobifida fusca large spore-forming bacteriophage Tp1 is 4,550 bp in length and has a 93.9% G+C content. It has long and flexible DNA molecules, and it belongs to the family Siphoviridae. The Tp1 genome contains 53 open reading frames (ORFs) and 3 non-coding regions, of which 31 are putative, of which 8 are unique. The majority of the ORFs are involved in the nucleotide metabolism and the DNA packaging. The results of the phylogenetic analysis suggest that Tp1 belongs to the subcluster A of the genus Thermobifida phages.This invention relates generally to a pump adapted to draw fuel through the center of a peripheral wall of a fuel tank. The prior art is replete with a wide variety of fuel pumps. In particular, the prior art is also replete with pumps which are located within a fuel tank and which include a driven shaft which draws fuel through the center of a wall of the fuel tank to provide fuel to a vehicle engine. A problem encountered with most of such pumps is their inability to resist the forces created by the pressure of the fuel which is being drawn and thereby the tendency of the pump to be damaged. In other pumps of the prior art, the shaft of the pump has the plurality of ribs or projections provided thereon in order to resist the forces created by the pressure of the fuel being drawn. However, such pumps have not been totally effective. The present invention provides a fuel pump which includes a driven shaft which is disposed within a wall of a fuel tank and includes a radial flange at one end thereof which is disposed in a recess formed in the wall of the tank. The radial flange is fixedly connected to a piston which is pivotally connected to the driven shaft. The resulting structure of the pump creates a bearing which is effective in resisting the forces created by the pressure of the fuel being drawn through the pump. Other objects and purposes of the invention will be apparent to persons familiar with structures of this general type upon reading the following specification and inspecting the accompanying drawings. Further, the present invention includes a fuel tank which includes a generally annular wall and having a fuel inlet and an outlet adjacent the wall. A closure member is pivotally connected to the wall adjacent to the fuel inlet.
